

Dr. Tsvetan Tsvetkov is Associate professor in University of National and World Economy. He is Vice Dean of the Faculty "Economics of Infrastructure".

He has acquired his experience as a researcher and scientific secretary at the Research Laboratory "Development of production and urban systems," University of National and World Economy. From 1992 he was lecturer at the Department of National and Regional Security. He has specialized in issues of security policy at the University of Groningen, the Netherlands and the Institute for Eastern and International Studies in Cologne, Germany. His main research interests are in the fields of management of innovation and investment, quantitative methods in management, project management, risk management and defence resources management. He has over 60 publications in Bulgarian and English. Dr. Tsvetkov participates in numerous national and international research projects.